

Dear Fellow,

The Medical Society of London's 245th Annual Dinner on Monday 12th March 2018 will be held in The Library of The Reform Club 104 Pall Mall SW1Y 5EW. The Reform Club was founded in 1836, in Pall Mall, in the centre of what is often called London's Clubland. The founders commissioned a leading architect of the day, Charles Barry, to build an imposing and palatial clubhouse. It is as splendid today as when it opened in 1841. Membership was originally restricted to those who pledged support for the Great Reform Act of 1832, and the many MPs and Whig peers among the early members developed the Club as the political headquarters of the Liberal Party. The Club no longer has any political affiliations.

The Principal Guests are: Professor Harold Ellis CBE FRCS and Professor John Schofield FRCPath

Professor Harold Ellis CBE FRCS is a retired Surgeon. He is Emeritus Professor of Surgery in the University of London and most recently a professor in the Department of Anatomy & Human Sciences at the King's College London School of Medicine.

Professor John Schofield is a pathologist with over 20 years Consultant experience. He trained in pathology at the Royal Marsden Hospital and Hammersmith Hospital, Royal Postgraduate Medical School. He is Chairman of The Reform Club

The Prosecco Reception will start at 19.00 with dinner at 19.30. Carriages at 22.30. The dress is Black Tie with miniature medals and decorations. The cost of the dinner is £96 per person.
